STANLEY KUNITZ

THE PORTRAIT

My mother never forgave my father for killing himself, especially at such an awkward time and in a public park, that spring
when I was waiting to be born.
She locked his name in her deepest cabinet
and would not let him out, though I could hear him thumping.
When I came down from the attic with the pastel portrait in my hand of a long-lipped stranger with a brave moustache and deep brown level eyes, she ripped it into shreds without a single word and slapped me hard.
In my sixty-fourth year
I can feel my cheek still burning.
