HAVEPOETRY.COM

LOUISE GLÜCK

STILL LIFE

Father has his arm around Tereze.
She squints. My thumb is in my mouth: my fifth autumn.
Near the copper beech
the spaniel dozes in shadows.
Not one of us does not avert his eyes.
Across the lawn, in full sun, my mother
stands behind her camera.